Key Topic: Designing Learner-Active, Technology-Infused Classrooms

Goal: Designing Classrooms That Put Students in Charge of Their Learning

In March of 2020, when students headed home to work, LATIC students continued on as usual, switching to a new venue. The structures of LATIC focus on “students taking charge.” LATIC is a comprehensive framework for schools looking to take a bold step toward reinventing schooling.

- Five paradigm shifts in teachers' view of the teaching-learning process
- A focus on student engagement and empowerment toward efficacy
- Fostering instructional equity
- Launching units of study with real-world problems and challenges to motivate students
- Differentiated activities to provide opportunities for all students to learn at high levels
- A shift from teacher as knowledge disseminator to facilitator of learning
- Increased student choice and voice
- A natural Multi-Tiered System of Support for all learners
- Based on the books Students Taking Charge and Reinventing the Classroom Experience

Transformational Professional Development Experience

- Starting with a cohort of eight teachers (or multiples of eight)
- An eight-day immersive workshop experience
- Ongoing coaching and asynchronous support
- A multi-year process building toward critical mass and a cultural transformation in the school
